Some time ago, "A Current Affair" ran a poignant piece telling the story of Gabe Watkin, a Queensland woman suffering the effects of Motor Neuron Disease. She had been pleading with Queensland Health for access to a surgical procedure that will likely extend her life. At the time of the broadcast, Queensland Health's Ethics Committee had kept Gabe and her family waiting twelve months before declining her access to the tracheotomy she was seeking. All Gabe wanted as she said herself was the right to live.

The Queensland Government at the same time was preparing its Right to Die Legislation. The NSW Parliament is beginning to debate similar legislation once again.

Euthanasia, (Voluntary Assisted Dying) is a subject that raises ethical and moral questions along with much heated emotion. Its supporters, often acting out of compassion for people who are so ill that life seems to hold nothing for them anymore, argue that people should have the right to decide how and when they die.

New South Wales is now the only State that has not passed such legislation at this point.

Along with the understandable heated emotion, clear thinking around this issue is terribly important, something that is often hard to come by around such matters. Many will argue on practical humanitarian grounds alone, that the quality of palliative care now available to dying and critically ill patients is such that there is no need for us to legalise euthanasia. A visit to any palliative care ward will confirm this impression. There is always a gentle lightness of touch on the part of doctors, nurses and staff and even a certain joy in the way they accompany a dying person's final journey. They are able to provide whatever it is that is needed to make the patient comfortable and minister to the patient with great tenderness. Nature is allowed to take its course and unnecessary measures to keep a person alive or to be resuscitated need not be taken.

This is a very different decision from the one to end one's own life.

Letting go is very different from taking away.

A crucial component in any debate for people of faith is the place of God in all this. If we leave God out of the debate, then the way is more easily cleared to support euthanasia and its accompanying legislation.

If we allow God into the discussion the ground shifts. The gift of life that God entrusts to us comes with a tag that says "Not to be taken away." The Catholic Church clearly opposes the practice of euthanasia understanding that we do not have the right to take our own life.

Even in my time of suffering and dying, I am still a person made in God's image and have the capacity to speak through my weakness of God's saving love. The dying Christ on the Cross speaks of this for us. In his dying, Jesus becomes a gift of life for the world, modelling for us the pattern for our own dying. We are never useless and of no value no matter how disabled and ill we become. Love can be our gift to each other right to our last breath. Memories surface, stories are told and love is refreshed around our death-bed.

Without the context of faith, we can understand the compassion and concern for loved ones that prompts people to argue for euthanasia to be legalised. With the eyes of faith we have another starting and ending point as we place God and not ourselves at the centre of our considerations. We do this not mindlessly or without making use of medical assistance. We trust that our gift of life will find its own time and place to end.

Allowing God into the conversation, we pause as we reflect on the decisions facing us.

May we have thoughtful, faith-filled and wise discussions with each other as this matter comes before our Parliament once again.

Father Kevin

SHOCK OF THE WEEK!

The lovely Emma Watkins, the Yellow Wiggle since 2013 has decided to leave Wiggleland and focus on family and her Ph.D studies.

No doubt her departure will disappoint some of our younger parishioners and perhaps their Dads!!!

Our sympathies to you all!

THIS WEEK'S SAINTS!

This Thursday we honour the Apostles Simon and Jude. Simon, known as "the zealot", suggests he was a very enthusiastic member of Jesus' little group. St Jude is held to be the patron for lost and desperate causes. He probably has a few friends around the place!

Catherine has been an absolute joy and a rock of safety for us all through these two trying years of the pandemic. Her patience, clarity of mind, attention to detail and fierce Irish humour have graced our lives so very much. We wish Catherine, her husband Paul and their two sons every blessing into the future and pray God's blessing on them.

Our new Secretarial team will comprise Mrs Anne Mawa who will be new to our community and our own Maggie Mullane. We look forward to welcoming Anne and Maggie to their new roles on our parish team.

Well Done...CONGRATS AND WELCOME ZONE

This Week... Scripture Zone

*To go straight to this Sunday's Readings, copy & paste this link:
<https://bible.usccb.org/bible/readings/102421.cfm>*

First Reading: Jeremiah 31:7-9

A song of celebration and praise features in the reading from Jeremiah. Joy is encountered as the loving God reaches out and calls his people from "the ends of the earth" back to their home and back to Godself.

Response

The Lord has done great things for us; we are filled with joy.

Second Reading: Hebrews 5:1-6

This reading from Hebrews continues to contrast the priests of Israel with priesthood found in Jesus. Both are called by God to act on behalf of humanity, but Jesus is like no other before him because his authority is found in being God's son; thus he is the eternal mediator for humankind.

Gospel Acclamation

Alleluia, alleluia!

Our Saviour Jesus Christ has done away with death, and brought us life through his Gospel.

Alleluia!

Gospel Reading Mark 10: 46-52

Bartimaeus may be blind, but he is able to see with eyes of faith. He recognises the power and intent of Jesus where others miss it.

Next Week:

*First Reading : Deuteronomy 6:2-6
Second Reading : Hebrews 7:23-28
Gospel Reading : Mark 12:28-34*

OUR PARISH PRAYER

Loving God,

you are the home for our hearts' deepest longings.

We find our way as families and as individuals only in you, through our brother Jesus, encouraged by the breath of your Spirit.

We thank you for all the blessings we enjoy in our parish family.

May we continue to share our gifts of life and love with glad and generous hearts.

May our world be somehow more alive because we have passed this way.

May Mary our parish patron continue to inspire us as we give new birth to your Word in our turn.

We make our prayer in Jesus' Name. Amen.
